Hi John,

Thank you for your response. I have gone out to a few of our key task force members looking for a date that works for all to meet. Is it possible you can come to Sheboygan or Madison, or is an 'in person' meeting better at your office in Chicago. I wanted to check with you for planning.

I appreciate your willingness to meet with us and hope to advise you some possible dates by early next week. Have a nice weekend John!

Hi Jane, sorry for the delay in responding, my e-mail shuffled your request off to our spam folder. I've fixed it. I am happy to talk to the task force, either on the phone or in person, whichever you would find most helpful. I will not be away from the office for any extended periods for the next month and can likely arrange my schedule to accommodate the task force. If you suggest a couple of times, I'm sure I can make one work.

I look forward to talking to you.

Subject: Sheboygan County, Wisconsin Nonattainment Task Force

Good morning John,

I received your contact information from Gail Good at the Wisconsin DNR as our contact for Region 5 and Sheboygan County's moderate nonattainment status. Late last year when our county was moved from marginal to moderate nonattainment, we formed a task force including: state elected officials, representatives from our federal elected officials, local leaders and businesses throughout the county. Our goal is to reduce the impact to our county businesses and economic growth due to our nonattainment status.

The leaders of this group would like to have a conference call with you or an "in person meeting" if feasible to discuss what is occurring in Sheboygan County and what actions or opportunities we have moving forward. We have been advised by Senator Tammy Baldwin's office that we should reach out regionally. I know that Region 5 has been involved with Sheboygan County nonattainment in the past and our establishing of a second monitor with three years of data has been completed.

Would you be able to provide us with a few dates and times we could review to set up a conference or meeting with you? We would greatly appreciate your insight as to what we can do in our current situation and then moving forward.

Thank you!
